If you've got some free time this weekend, you may want to browse some model galleries on the Rocketfin Pinterest boards. I like to look at model images to get some ideas, or maybe some insight into an unusual project that might be good to try. I build models of anything, so it could be a car one day, a scifi one the next, and maybe something from Warhammer.

The boards have thousands of model pictures, or related modeling subjects. I have a few boards I like to use for reference, such as cars and planes, or for dioramas. (pictures of old 1950s and 1960s places, like gas stations). Well actually, just about every board is reference in some way for me. I got on board with Pinterest at the beginning, so it's grown into a monster with over 82,000 followers. But it's been fun to just look at other modeling boards, and pin a few pictures I like into my boards. You can never have enough modeling projects, right? If only we could live long enough to build them all. LOL Or at least, build all the ideas in my head.

Anyways, take a look, follow some of the boards if you like some of them, and enjoy. See ya there!
